

Reality of corent events in the Holy Land

Corent "Israeli" brutal oppression of anti Zionist Jews

Thursday, June 14, 2007

A mass demonstration was held in Jerusalem in the neighborhood of Beit Yisroel.

Grand Rabbi Moshe Sternbuch of the anti Zionist Jewish community in Jerusalem, known as Eda Hacharedis, spoke out against the State of "Isreal" and the government officials of the city of Jerusalem. He decried the existence of the State of "Israel" and its government's support of an "abomination Parade" which has been scheduled to take place in the heart of the Holy City, Jerusalem, on the street of King David, on June 21 '07.

Thousands of orthodox Jews gathered in the mass demonstration. Several Rabbis spoke, to voice the opposition of the Jewish religious community, to the existence of the Zionist State and against the Zionist government, for once more rebelling against the Almighty, by aiding and abetting the desecration of the Almighty's Holy City.

The peaceful demonstrators were violently attacked by the police. Nine people were arrested and others were beaten mercilessly.

A mass demonstration took place in Jerusalem, on Bar Ilan Street.

Thirty five thousand people gathered, to cry out against the "Pro-perversion Parade" and to demonstrate against the government officials of the city of Jerusalem, for supporting a rebellion against the Almighty.

The demonstrators were peaceful and the protest began peacefully and orderly.

According to Israeli television Channel 2, during the demonstration, two undercover policemen, dressed as Orthodox Yeshiva students, mingled with the demonstrators and began throwing rocks at the police. Their goal was the justification for the police to attack the demonstrators and to launch a confrontation with the special force police, known as "Yassam". Unfortunately that is exactly what happened, the police fell upon the demonstrators and mercilessly beat them including amongst them, elderly men, women and children.

Hundreds of people have demonstrated in the streets of Meah Shearim. The Special Forces called "Yassam" arrived and attacked the crowd, injuring many of the participants. Twenty two people have been arrested. Huge water tankers with blue colored water shot water into homes of innocent people, breaking their windows and filling their homes with water. This caused a tremendous amount of damage. The water filled the beds of infants and little children of two and three years of age, with blue water. The electric wiring of the homes were permanently damaged, priceless items and manuscripts, holy books and electronic equipments etc., were ruined.

Thursday, June 21, 2007 (the day of the Parade)

Seven thousand police officers, costing the town 13 million shekels, supported and watched the people marching in the Pro-perversion Parade.

Tens of thousands of people opposing the parade, demonstrated around the entire city of Jerusalem. At the end of the day, more than one hundred people have been arrested, for praying specific prayers for the cessation of this abomination and for peacefully crying out in pain, for the desecration of the holiness of Jerusalem.

A shocking tale of the ongoing oppression of the Jewish inhabitants of a deeply religious town in the Holy Land

Wednesday, June 27, 2007

Government employees of the town of Beit Shemesh, arrived to remove a sign, erected by the religious inhabitants of the town on private property. The sign called for the ladies arriving to shop at the mall, to be dressed modestly in accordance with the rules of the Torah. Signs of this nature, are displayed in many other Orthodox Jewish neighborhoods throughout the world. In this case this sign has been displayed for some years. The town officials sent the workers to remove the sign due to a flimsy technical excuse. The true reason for the removal of the sign, is obvious and transparently clear. It is another act in the attempt to destroy and uproot religion from the Holy Land. The present timing was to intimidate the anti Zionist movement, which has recently enjoyed a tremendously large upsurge. Eventually, the town workers left without removing the sign due to a spontaneous protest of hundreds of people.

The sign read: women passing through our neighborhood, are requested to respect the feelings of our residents, to be dressed modestly. Modest dress includes: non plunging necklines, long sleeves, long skirts and no tight fitting clothing. Signed by: Rabbis of the neighborhood, institutions of schooling and charity, and the residents.

Seventy or eighty Special Forces of the police, known as "Yassam", arrived to watch the town workers of Beit Shemesh remove the sign.

The Beit Shemesh community which is almost entirely religious organized a protest. During the demonstration the police brutally attacked the peaceful protesters.

Rabbi Daniel Biton, a dean of a Rabbinical college and officiating Rabbi of a local synagogue, was badly beaten and was hospitalized with several breaks of his left foot. A week later he had an operation and had ten metal pins installed in his foot in order to repair it. At the same time, five other Orthodox Rabbis were arrested. Their crime was for peaceably crying out, from the depths of their heart, for being prevented from protecting the sanctity and holiness of the Holy Land in their own deeply religious neighborhood. Those five people were badly beaten and taken to the arrest holding area in Beit Shemesh. In the evening they were transferred into a temporary jail at Migrash Harusim - Russian Compound in the old city of Jerusalem.

Tuesday, July 3, 2007

All the leading Orthodox Rabbis of the entire community, in the religious Jewish town of Beit Shemesh, have gathered for mass prayer. At the end of the prayer session, they replaced the sign which had been standing for four years, that was removed by the town workers, with an even larger sign.

Police punished the whole town for putting back the sign, by blocking all the streets of the whole town of Beit Shemesh. They even did not allow buses, carrying young school children returning home from school, to pass. The children, as well as many others were not able to return home.

Beit Shemesh Police Chief Oz Eliasi, came to the arrest house in Beit Shemesh. One of the officers demanded that the arrestees stand up. Rabbi Moshe Leib Friedman and some others, refused to show them this respect. Eliasi, with a smile on his face, in front of at least twenty people, called out "I'm going to show you how to deal with them, do you want to see something nice?"

He went over to Rabbi Moishe Lieb Friedman and started to punch him on his head, for a few minutes, until Rabbi Friedman lost his balance and collapsed on the ground. Two police officers tried to stand him up, but he could not stand on his feet, because he was almost unconscious. No medical help was sent to help Rabbi Friedman. Rabbi Friedman was left lying in his cell for three days not knowing whether it was day or night and not knowing where he was. On Saturday, he regained consciousness on his own. On Sunday, his face was black and blue because of internal bleeding inside his head.

Thursday, July 5, 2007

Chief [anti Zionist] Rabbi of Jerusalem, Rabbi Tovia Weiss, was blocked by the police and prevented from visiting the arrested people. This was an extreme step that the police took, in order to show their disrespect and power over the religious anti Zionist Jewish community. Never in the history of Jerusalem was a Chief Rabbi refused permission to visit people who have been arrested.

Monday, July 9, 2007

Three of the arrested people, have been transferred from the arrest house in Jerusalem Migrash Harusim - Russian Compound, to a temporary holding facility in Ma'asiyahu in the town of Ramlah, until it is decided where they will be sent.

Those three people, have been forced to sleep overnight with handcuffs on their wrists and manacles on their ankles, in a dirty storage room with rats and many other vermin running around.

Tuesday, July 10, 2007

The three arrested people were transferred from Ma'asiyahu in the town of Ramlah. They have been transferred to the town of Ashkelon, to a terrible prison. The prison is for murderers and people who have committed violent crimes. No kosher food was allowed to be given to the arrested people. Because the three arrested people were refused Kosher food, they did not eat for several days, nor did they receive any food while in the town of Ramlah, therefore they became very weak.

Wednesday, July 11, 2007

One of the arrested people, Rabbi Joel Simon collapsed. A doctor was sent to him. When examining Rabbi Simon, the doctor found very low blood pressure which could have caused his death, G-d forbid, Still no food was allowed to be brought to him from the outside, only non-Kosher food.
